Auction aLive

Hits: 9,717

Description: This is a proprietary stand-alone application. Its purpose is to monitor and record a live auction with real people all in the same room. You know the old fashioned way. This application requires human interaction during a live auction. As the auctioneer is selling items, someone sits at the computer and inputs the data as it is being sold. Then after the auction is over all bidders have to come by and checkout with the computer to get their receipt before they can leave with their purchased items. This software was not intended for over the web transactions, and has no security features built-in to protect your data.
