This is an awesome free very powerful gallery script, I highly recommend it!!!! It is a piece of cake to install and configure, up in seconds!

Amazing Script, Amazing Support, Amazingly Affordable, Oct 13th, 2004

Not only is the script itself amazing, the support is amazing as well. My company recently purchased the enterprise license, which is a bargain, and needed some parts of the script customized. The developer quickly adopted our suggestions and made them a configurable option in the standard application.

On top of that the script itself is top notch, well thought out and the perfect solution for anyone looking to automate an online gallery.

The best photo gallery I've used, Oct 15th, 2004

IISWorks' ListPics is the best free photo gallery software I've ever used. After creating a virtual directory or "application" in IIS, you simply save images in a folder in Listpics' image directory and the script does the rest. Listpics is fully customizable and the default interface style is attractive and professional. The app is rock-solid and even includes a registered ActiveX control that is used to view and manipulate images. If you're running IIS and are looking to create an online photo gallery, this is the script to use.
