phpEventCalendar

Hits: 91,389

Description: phpEventCalendar is a mysql backed application that allows users to post and display events or notes on month-at-a-glance calendar. Because only authorized users can add events or posts, the calendar is perfect for organizations that want to communicate upcoming events to a larger audience. phpEventCalendar comes with a user administration panel, and two user levels. One user type can post events, and add or edit users, while the other user type can only post events.

Simple to install and use. I can think of a few more options that would be nice but by far the most pro calendar script I could find.

This script is fabulous!, Apr 29th, 2006

A great, effective script for putting up an events calendar.

It took no time at all to figure out how to customize it to my liking, and unlike a lot of scripts, you can add it into an existing site layout with almost no hassles.

Great documentation inside the scripts. Love it! Deserves a version number much higher than 0.2!! My hat's off to the writer!
