The people who put together this site must just like to see their names on the web. It serves no other real useful purpose. For one thing, this script gives you the wrong database. It just doesn't work. In fact, none of the code on this site works. I have downloaded nearly everything here at one time or another and haven't even had one success. Attempting to download and use this script or anything else from asp emporium is a waste of your time and their bandwidth.
