aspInventory

Hits: 2,021

Description: I designed this database to help me keep track of the growing inventory in my IT shop. It allows for searching by any of the fields in the database, and also lets you configure your own container numbering system, location names, etc. It runs on any webserver that supports ASP.

Version two now supports multiple users with different access levels (read only, add and update, etc.) as well as the ability to retrieve lost passwords, export items to Excel or CSV files, and change the number of records displayed on each page.
