The last two months, I've installed this script at four difrent web sites, and among the average computer user, this is a winner.

My customers are realy impressed by the script features, and the simplicity of the management console.

The script can easily list thumbnails, show large version, and create a slideshow within your current web design.

The slideshow feature can also slide through a selected gallery.

As the administrator of the gallery, you can upload new images, create and put them in to galleries, edit image information, delete images and full galleries, choose if you would like to view or just store the image in the gallery and more.

A realy COOL feature, is that you can, as administrator, remake all thumbnails into a diffrent size with just two mouse clicks...

Check this script out... And buy the full version... you will not be disapointed.

Galleryscript is a simple to use Perl based gallery creator. It uses a simple password protected administrator interface for uploading images and defining variables which can be used as captions, links or whatever you can imagine. The program creates thumbnails and features mutliple viewing modes, including slideshows (Xtra version). By altering simple templates, it is easy to seamlessly integreate Galleryscript into your site. The program is generally stable and easy to customize.
