Well, as the line above says, you can have your forum running in minutes. And even without the fully comprehensive reference guide being written, I was off and doing stuff to my forum in VERY short order. The customisability is brilliant, and just about every aspect you can think of in a forum can be changed. And better yet, it's in constant development with more updates due soon.

It has all the features of other mainstream forum systems, and some you might not have thought of! New features should be coming with future updates.
