Nukequiz

Hits: 9,769

Description: Nukequiz is a quiz module for Php Nuke that comes complete with automatic installation and upgrade scripts. This module includes various functions for both the administration and user interface. The quiz can have three types of questions, multiple choice, single answer and multiple selection. It has a timer for each quiz and they can have limited attempts set together with a closing date set for entries on each individual quiz. The module includes a administration and user help system, to help with various settings that need to be configured. Some functions for admins allow a quiz to be set as a competitions, export and import questions to a quiz using csv format, together with uploading image and sound files to add to individual questions. This module comes complete with pdf instruction and help manual, together with an on-line version that you can access. We have support forums and even install the module with one quiz for a small donation.

Nukequiz v2.0.0 includes more features including import and export of questions using csv files. Included also are the admin and user help system that has been intergrated into Nukequiz.

You have an installer facility and also a version check so that you don't miss out on any updates.

it says you can make quizzes and survery's etc. but there are no instructions included how to install modify etc. if you are an expert in php then this might be worth a look

This is for expert's only, Jan 13th, 2008

The 'kiss' website is incredibly well done; but the software is a joke. There are zero instructions how to install it, much less use it or modify it to your own purposes. Unless you are an expert or write php for a living, try something else.
