This program is a refreshing alternative to one who has spent inordinate amounts of time trying to make sense out of the convoluted mess that the Nukes have become. This CMS system has a very clean architecture and simple interface, but don't let that fool you... it still has all the power of Nuke without all the confusion. Web sites created with this product are clean, organized, scalable, and extendable. It's not free, but well worth the modest price.

I build more than 5 websites a month and I let my users use TOKO CMS as their content management system. After delivering the website to the clients I hardly ever hear from them again since they can do most of their changes themself fast and without any need for technical knowledge.

I highly recommend using this product.
