

HotScripts
<http://www.hotscripts.com>  .COM

Storing and retrieving variables from application object

Hits: 235

Description: In this tutorial, we will take a look at Application Object. When you've used Application Object, all ASP pages can store and retrieve information. The information in Application Object stored in server and all ASP pages can access the information. The main differences between Session Object and Application Object is Application Object stores information in server memory.

Resource Specifications

Platform(s):	windows
Date Added:	Mar 28th, 2007
Last Updated:	Mar 28th, 2007
Author:	Dev tutorials.info

Average Visitor Rating:  4.00 (out of 5)

Number of Ratings: 1 Votes

Average Member Rating:  0.00 (out of 5)

Number of Reviews: 0 Reviews

Other Links by This Member

Counting lines in text files

Retrieving Column Names with values

Storing and retrieving variables from application object

AppendToLog in response object

Creating files online in PHP

Image downloading from remote servers in ASP

Displaying last modified date of any file

Generating random passwords

How to modify expire date of a cookie

PHP control structures - do while

