Calendar Date Picker

Hits: 6,670

Description: Easy to set up calendar script that overcomes most of the flaws of existing scripts (like the problem in IE that it gets overlapped by select-boxes). It works with forms, allowing the user to insert a date through the GUI of the calendar. Automatically marks any existing date that has already been filled in and also marks the current date.

Has a wide range of configurable options like the format of the date, excluding days/dates, range of years that should be shown, debug information, and more. Except for the html part that embodies the calendar, no other changes are needed to your existing pages!

Appearance is fully customizable through an external stylesheet
